Freak Egg has Groove Around It

A freak egg was brought to The Tribune office Saturday evening by William

The novel "fruit," Mr. Schumacher states, was laid by a 6 months old pullet of the Columbian Buff variety.

FLAGSHIP SUNK OR CAPTURED

Pekin, Oct. 21.—There is no doubt that more serious news than that of the defeat of the government troops by the revolutionists at Hankow has been received at Peking but not published.

There are persistent rumors that Admiral Sun Chen Ping's flagship was sunk or captured. This is the second Chinese warship reported disabled by the rebels.

The fate of the Chinese admiral was not mentioned in the dispatches from Hankow.

It is reported that the rebels are now holding Hwang Chow at the narrowest point of the Yang-Tse-Kiang river, and that they are also in possession of Ichang and the railway near Kwang-Shui.

The result of the fighting has caused a general feeling of the foreign legation that the situation is now critical. The diplomats met and considered China's foreign financial obligations. The government has requested a postponement of the payment of the Boxer indemnity installments and is eagerly seeking a new man.

A belated telegram from Chang-Sha under date of last Wednesday states that the fall of the city is imminent. The rebels appeared to have posted heavy artillery in a strong position in the hills north of Canton.

Helpful Hints for Housekeepers.

Ink stains can be removed by washing in sweet milk.
An old bath towel makes an excellent mop cloth.
The spatula or palette-knife is quite a useful utensil in the kitchen, having a broad, dull-edged blade made of very flexible steel. It will be found useful in many ways.
Jams and butters may be made from pulp left from jelly making or from knarled or imperfect fruit.
A cheap and serviceable fruit cupboard can be made out of the boxes that mason jars come in.
These boxes can be placed on their sides, one above the other, in the cellar, and the fruit placed in them. A piece of black builders' paper makes a convenient cover to shut out the light.

IMPURE AIR BREEDS DISEASE

PROPER VENTILATION IN OUR HOMES IS ESSENTIAL TO GOOD HEALTH.

WINDOWS SHOULD BE OPENED

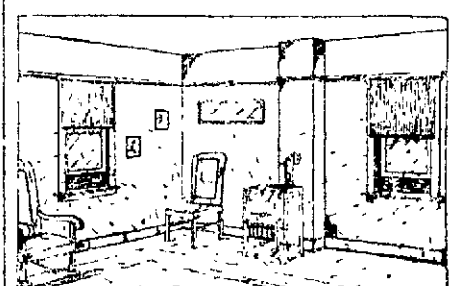

Tendency to Shut Houses Up Tight in Winter Should Be Avoided.

Air in houses may be polluted by the gases breathed from our lungs and that escape from leaky stoves. Air contains enormous numbers of dust particles. The average city air is estimated to contain three million dust particles to the cubic inch. Country air contains two thousand dust particles to the cubic inch. The air indoors contains ten times as many dust particles as the air out-of-doors. With the dust, of course, are mingled the small dust plants with probable germs of disease. Ventilation is the replacing of the impure air of a room, or other enclosed space, with proper air from out-of-doors.

Need of Pure Air.

Inasmuch as the adult human body requires for regular use about five hundred cubic inches of air every minute, the air in the immediate vicinity of the nose is quickly used up and an equal amount of impure air is breathed out of the lungs. It is therefore necessary that pure air from out-of-doors be constantly pouring into our rooms and the impure air passing out.

One can not do his best work if he is breathing impure air. One is more susceptible to disease if he breathes impure air, because his body is not strong enough to resist the disease germs when they are once admitted into the body. Disease germs which grow in the interior of our bodies also flourish best in a small supply of air. The proof that people are injured by breathing impure air, has been obtained by comparing statistics for a certain number of years gathered among men living in unventilated, and those living in well ventilated places.

Fresh Air May Be Brought Into a Room by Lowering the Window Sash From the Top and Raising the Lower Sash and Inserting a Loosely-fitted Board. An Open Stove or Grate Helps Get Rid of Impure Air.

Methods of Ventilating.

Air does not move of its own accord. In our houses we best create a circulation of air by having two windows open, one for the impure air to pass out, another for pure air to enter. One window open, however, will serve as two. Ventilating should be done in such a way as not to cool the room too much, for this reason, the window is best lowered from the top, in order that the air may be heated before mingling with the air in the lower part of the room. The lower sash may be raised and a loosely fitted board inserted; fresh air then enters through the space between the upper and lower sash and is directed upward, thus avoiding direct draft.

It is better to have a window open all the time than to air the room only occasionally. There should be a constant removal of impure air and a fresh supply of pure air. An open stove or fireplace is a reliable means of getting rid of impure air.

Air is of even greater importance at night than it is during the day. The body recuperates mostly at night during sleep, then large amounts of oxygen are required, so there should be plenty of fresh air at night. The sleeper may be protected from drafts by a screen or chair between the window and the bed.

CHOLERA KILLING SOLDIERS

Epidemic rampant in Italian Army in Tripoli.

Malta, Oct. 21.—A cholera epidemic is rampant among the soldiers in the Italian army in Tripoli. Advice from there states that 70 cases of cholera have broken out since the Italians took possession of the city. There have been 20 deaths and the pestilence is spreading at an alarming rate, despite the efforts of the military medical authorities to check it.

So far reports have shown that this dreaded disease has proved far more deadly than the bullets of the Turks.

JURORS MAY HOLD OPINIONS

Los Angeles, Oct. 21. That a juror who holds an opinion which would require strong evidence to remove regarding the destruction of the Times building, whether that opinion is that it was either dynamite or gas, is not unbiased enough to try James H. McNamara is the position taken by Judge Bordwell.

After digesting his action in excusing Juror Otto Jensen, because Jensen declared himself satisfied that dynamite was used, although absolutely unopinionated regarding McNamara's guilt or innocence, both sides agreed that this was the only construction possible. Both are well satisfied, as the ruling will simplify the future work of qualifying jurors.

Today's recess in the trial was welcomed by both sides, because they were anxious to secure legal precedents affecting jurors who refuse to convict on circumstantial evidence alone. The state especially is interested in this, because of the action of the court in overruling the objection to Venetianman E. C. Robinson, who told the district attorney he did not believe he could convict and inflict the death penalty where the evidence was chiefly circumstantial.

Despite the previous confident assertion of Detective Burns that he had a complete, direct case, District Attorney Fredricks, while this matter was being considered, made the admission that much of the state's case will probably be purely circumstantial.

Dope for the Bugs

Christy Mathewson is said to have lost heavily Tuesday when the Athletics beat him. Matty would not bet on the Giants' chances in the series, but he would bet the Athletics every game he pitched against them.

George Mullin visited Matty before Tuesday's game. Matty told Mullin he was betting on himself.

"I think you will lose today, you're due for a trimming," said Mullin.

Matty said he still had some money to bet on himself. Mullin offered $15 to $25 and Matty accepted.

One thing is said to have bet his entire world's series money that the Giants will win the series.

Home-Run Frank Baker says Connie Mack and Eddie Collins are responsible for his ability to hit home runs. Baker is modest and seemed to doubt over his fame. He refuses to take any credit for his work.

"I hit the ball hard when I was a kid," said Baker Friday, "but when I went into the New England league I found I couldn't take a big swing at everything and gripped my bat up from the handle to peek out short hits."

"When I got into the majors I found such tactics wouldn't do any ways work," Connie Mack took hold of me and taught me how to bat all over again.

"I hit 50 points better because Eddie Collins bats ahead of me and is a great base runner. When Eddie is on base he worries the pitcher and catcher so much that the pitcher wastes so many balls, fearing Eddie will steal, that he gets in a hole and has to put the ball over the plate for me. Uncomers the ball in the groove, Eddie is away from first like a flash and I try to lose the 5th ball."

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—The New York players have praise for the Athletics individually and as a team. Beals Becker, who was thrown out so easily by Lapp in the eleventh inning on Tuesday, is considered one of the best base runners in the National League. Becker pays a great compliment to Jack Lapp. He says:

"I thought I had a good start on Combs and would beat the throw easily, but Lapp got the ball away too quickly for me. He is a classy catcher and sends the ball to second like a bullet."

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Johnny Evers, second baseman of the Cubs, was the victim of an attack after the final game of the city baseball series, being struck three times on the face by an enraged fan, who assaulted the player as he was walking toward the clubhouse. Before he could reach his apartment, Evers was struck over one of his eyes, while his lip is cut from the effects of the blow.

Long legs, a fan heap to most shortstops, have made a star of George McBride, traded to the Naps by the Washington club for George Stovall. Tom Corcoran, with the Cincinnati Reds, years ago, is the only other long-legged player who became a star short stop. Jennings, Wagner, Parrott, Wallace, Thomas, Ruth and Barry, grew because of their ability to cover territory, are built close to the ground.

Philadelphia, Oct. 21. The two home runs made by Frank Baker in the world's series will bring Baker and the Athletics thousands of dollars. They are already ready work over $100,000 for the Athletics. Baker has been assured by theatrical managers and movie houses his picture will be a box office success. Baker is said to have been offered $100,000 for the rights to his picture.

The complete series of the world's series games, played from Oct. 11 to Oct. 21, has been secured by the world's series company, which has secured the rights to the series. The series will be shown in five parts, each part containing five games. The series will be shown in five parts, each part containing five games. The series will be shown in five parts, each part containing five games.

The only other game played over 300 are the pitchers, Mathewson and Bender.

Dan Murphy, although he has hit the ball on the nose of his every time up, is still down below zero. Murray and Fletcher are in the same class with Dan.

The total averages show that the Athletics have outplayed and outplayed the Giants.

The Giants spent Thursday evening training up new signals. McGraw has come to the conclusion that the Athletics know as much about his ball game as he does.

Texas Tix Speaker is being strongly boosted for next year's manager of the Red Sox, but this will hardly be possible as James McAleer will have something to say regarding this.

Eddie Collins, the popular second baseman of the Athletics, has been presented with a silver loving cup by his fellow-townsmen of Lansdowne, a suburb of the city where he makes his home.

Cuba has become the mecca for big league scouts, the result of the fine showing made by Marrans and Almada, two of the best Cuban players.

UP-TO-DATE NEWS FROM THE WORLD OF BOXERS

New York, Oct. 21.—Jack Johnson is going back at a rapid rate; in fact he has slowed down to such a degree that he has practically quit the ring and has canceled his trip to Australia.

This is the information imparted today by Marty Cutler, the champion's sparring partner, on his arrival from England. Unless Johnson can get some big purses in New York for battles with white horses he will continue on his way to Pittsburgh.

"Johnson has been training hard in England," Cutler said, "but he has just naturally slowed up."

New York, October 21.—Tommy Murphy, of New York, defeated Phil Brock, of Cleveland, in a ten-round bout here yesterday. Murphy excelled at infighting and had the better of the first rounds. There were no knockdowns.

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—Tommy Coleman, the Frankfurt negro lightweight, knocked out Johnny Glover, the Boston clown boxer, in the third round of the windup at the Broadway Athletic Club last night.

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 21.—In one of the fastest and most scientific six-round bouts ever seen here, Paek Miller, of Philadelphia, was shaded last night by Jack McGarrett, the fast welterweight, who is rated Allentown's premier boxer.

Milwaukee, October 21.—Johnny Thompson, the "Sveomare" of Sweden, will sail for Australia on November 1, where he is scheduled to engage in five title contests under the management of Hugh McIntosh.

Aurora, Mo., October 21.—Battling Nelson met George Alger, of Cambridge, here last night, and came off second best in a six-round bout. Alger succeeded in keeping the Battler at arm's length more than half the time, and landed four punches to every one that he received. In the clinches the going was all in favor of Nelson. Nelson was wild at the beginning, judging his distance poorly, and always took a couple of punches on the jaw before finding the range of his shifty opponent. Alger, with his bit and get away tactics, had all the best of it in this style of fighting.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 21. Kid Lemuel, local middleweight, has been matched to fight Kid McCoy at Gary, Ind., on the night of November 18.

New York, Oct. 21. It looks as if there is going to be a battle at the Waldorf Astor fight, billed to occur at the Madison Athletic Club. The movie picture company that agreed to contribute $10,000 to the fighters has withdrawn its offer and for the moment no one knows what is going to become of the scheduled bout.

Wagstaff, through Tom Jones, held out until guaranteed two million dollars, one from the boxing picture people and one from the club. Now that the picture company has been paid off, Jones threatens to call off the match.

London, October 21. Game played at 12 times at 12, which is a 117 clip. Collins has secured four out of 11 times, but for 361 and Meves has lost out of ten times at 12, but for 300. Baker's home runs are the real feature of the series.

The only other game played over 300 are the pitchers, Mathewson and Bender.

Dan Murphy, although he has hit the ball on the nose of his every time up, is still down below zero. Murray and Fletcher are in the same class with Dan.

The second team of the Coshocton high school went down to defeat at the hands of the West Lafayette high team on the latter's gridiron Saturday morning to the tune of 10 to 0. The locals though greatly outweighed and lacking one man in the line put up a good game, holding the backs of the home team in great style. They were, however, unable to advance the ball after

TARKINGTON DIVORCE SUIT

Indiansville, Ind., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Booth Tarkington, wife of the novelist and playwright, filed suit for divorce in the superior court of this county. She charges the defendant with cruelty and asks for the custody of their 5-year-old child.

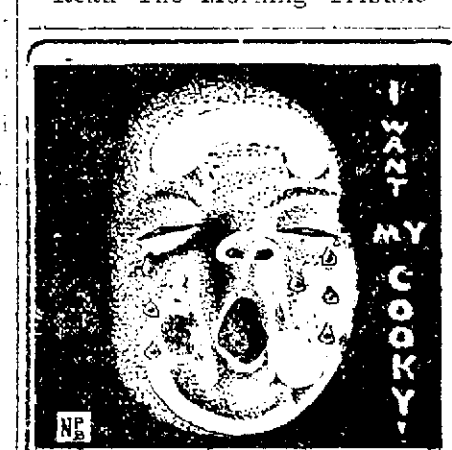

"That she has always been a dutiful wife, but that the defendant has treated her with great cruelty," is the principal allegation in the complaint, which is very brief and does not relate any instances of the alleged cruel treatment. No mention of demand for alimony is made.

It is set out that Mr. and Mrs. Tarkington have not lived together since last July. Mr. Tarkington is in New York, having returned recently from a trip to Europe. Prior to last July Mr. and Mrs. Tarkington maintained a home in a fashionable residential district of this city, but they had spent a great deal of time at Paris, Capri and New York.

Mrs. Tarkington before her marriage was Miss Laura Louise Fletcher, daughter of Stoughton J. Fletcher, a millionaire banker and capitalist of this city. At his death he left her a large fortune. She is a writer of verse and has contributed to magazines under the name of Louise Fletcher Tarkington.

Are the Courts Fair to You?

DON'T pass this question because you think you are not interested. You are interested. Look at the story "The Usurped Power of the Courts" on page 554 of Pearson's Magazine now on sale. Look at it! It tells things that you ought to know—things that are of great importance to your future prosperity—things that show how judicial mangling is working against your good. Look at this story. Everybody is getting interested in its subject. Look at it. If you don't, it will not be long before you'll wish you had.

The same magazine contains the beginning of the wonderful story of "The Four Hundred," the story of the rise and fall, morally and otherwise, of big rich American families. Q.—The first man Adam became a living soul (1 Corinthians xv, 45; Genesis ii, 7), the last Adam (the Lord from heaven, 1 Corinthians xv, 47) at His resurrection became a living spirit. In the general resurrection, will the first man Adam become a living spirit also?

Answer.—The Scriptures in outlining the Divine Program as it relates to the salvation of mankind plainly teach that the present Christian Era, from the time of our Lord's first advent to the time of His second coming, has been set apart for the purpose of selecting and developing a special class, the members of which in the resurrection will be changed from fleshly to spiritual conditions. In this present life these are said to be begotten of the spirit, then quickened of the spirit and finally born of the spirit in the resurrection morning. These are to be like their Lord and see Him as He is, changed from mortal to immortal conditions. All others, Adam included, are to be awakened unto a resurrection by judgment (John v, 28, 29—not damnation. See Revised Version), a raising up to perfection as human beings, and these are to inhabit the earthly plane of existence. Only the Lord Jesus and His followers, the Church of Christ, will inherit the Kingdom of Heaven, the heavenly or spiritual honors and blessings, while the world of mankind in general will obtain blessings and life eternal as natural or fleshly beings. See 1 Corinthians, xv, chapters.

DAILY FASHION TALKS

BY MAY MANTON

A FASHIONABLE AUTUMN SUIT.

AUTUMN suits show generous variety, but short jackets with closings that are made a little to the left of the front, and skirts that suggest the panel idea make favorite features. This costume shows one of the new jacket suits with trimming of corded silk, combined with black and white. It is eminently smart and it illustrates many novelties. The black trimming is satin, the white trimming is cloth, and cloth utilized in such ways is distinctly new. The collar can be made either round or square at the back. The skirt is cut in four gores, but the front and back gores are stitched to suggest the panel idea. The upper edge can be finished with a belt at the natural waist line or the skirt can be cut two inches above and give a semi-empiere effect. The model will be found a good one for all seasonable suitings. Serge promises to be much used for general wear; the material illustrated is in the best style; heavy satins are to have extended vogue for the more dressy costumes and there are always the familiar suitings. Satin with collar and cuffs of white broadcloth would make an exceedingly smart costume.

For the medium size will be required for the coat 4 1/2 yards of material 27 inches wide, 2 1/2 yards 44 or 52, with 3/4 yard of silk, 1/2 yard of satin, and 1/4 yard of broadcloth for trimming; for the skirt will be needed 5 yards of material 27, 3 1/2 yards 44, or 52 inches wide.

A May Manton pattern of the jacket, No. 7090, in sizes from 34 to 44 bust, or of the skirt, No. 7094, sizes 22 to 34 waist, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents for each.

7090 Short Semi-Fitted Coat, 34 to 44 bust.

7094 Four Gored Skirt, 22 to 34 waist.

DESTROYING PROPERTY

Here are extracts from a news dispatch which appeared in a Columbus paper of yesterday morning and bearing a Sidney, O., date line.

Sidney, Oct. 20.—Consternation reigns in high school circles here because members of the student body have been summoned before the grand jury to tell what they know concerning alleged sales of liquor to Sidney minors, principally boys and girls in the high school. The testimony is said to have disclosed many violations of the law and to have shown that boys and girls under the legal age have had free access to saloons and wineries of this city. It is declared that these youths of both sexes have purchased liquor at will and have become intoxicated, and that heretofore both the sellers and drinkers have escaped the law's processes. Recently, declare many persons here, high school pupils, both boys and girls, have been seen on the streets at night in an intoxicated condition.

And yet some people profess wonder at the widespread opposition in this country to the open saloon. Carrie Nation was branded as a lawbreaker and frequently arrested and put in jail for malicious destruction of property. And yet, as between the Carrie Nation brand of lawlessness and the above kind, we prefer Carrie's. Hers destroyed property. The other kind destroys something in the boy and girl more valuable than property.

A WOMAN'S OPINION

Mrs. Olaf N. Gullin, chairman of the department of economics of the General Federation of Women's clubs of the United States delivered an address the other day before the annual convention of the Ohio Federation in Cleveland. She had a wealth of statistics at her command and from these she drew many startling deductions.

Stated, emphatically, she holds the opinion that modern civilization is rotten, home life is corrupt, the ideals of the nation are at low ebb and a mighty uprising of the women of the nation is necessary to bring about better conditions. It is not unlikely that Mrs. Gullin employed the usual device of the public speaker, which is to overstate a case in order to impress a well established truth on the minds of the hearers.

There are undoubtedly many rotten spots in our civilization but it would be difficult to prove that the civilization of the twentieth century is actually rotten throughout. There are many corrupt homes in America today—far too many of them—but the unqualified statement that the home life of the nation is corrupt or, by inference, any more corrupt than our home life was thirty, fifty, a hundred years ago, is to make a statement for whose truth neither Mrs. Gullin nor any other living person can personally vouch.

That the ideals of the nation are at low ebb is true, but here is the same inference that they are at lower ebb than they have been in the past. We believe this statement, or inference can be successfully refuted. Money, the accumulation of wealth at any cost, at any sacrifice, is still our dominant ideal, but it has been for a quarter of a century, might we not say for a century and a quarter.

And on the theory that it is sometimes darkest just before dawn, it might be said that never before were our national ideals so low as they are today. But there is still something to be said on this score. Never before were there signs of so general an awakening as there are today. Never before was the national conscience so sensitive as it is today.

Both our political parties were just as rotten, just as devoted to low ideals twenty years ago as they are today. But the really significant fact in the connection is that today the rank and file of all voters is so awake to the true situation that both parties are threatened with disintegration. The fight for good government is so broad an issue in both parties that the friends of good government in both are instinctively seeking each other's fellowship, and consequently the friends of the old order are being driven in sheer desperation to support each other in their common hunt for graft and the spoils of office.

The same was in a sorry plight twenty and thirty years ago. It is equally bad today. But again this is not the significant point. The big fact in this connection is that so aroused has public opinion become that the senate is taking steps for its own reform.

ation. It has at last consented to have its members elected directly by the people and it is getting after its own members with a view to expulsion when it is proved that they have been elected by corrupt means.

Similar instances might be multiplied indefinitely, all tending to show that while Mrs. Gullin's charges have a basis of truth, yet our civilization is cutting out its rotten spots and our national ideals are at least no lower than formerly, while they show signs of being materially bettered in the immediate future. There are no grounds for downright pessimism in this country, although there is room for vast improvement all along the line. There is, by the same token, cause for genuine optimism, although existing conditions are causing thoughtful people grave concern for the future.

Synopsis Middleton's "Barriers Burned Away"

To those who have read E. P. Roe's famous novel and forgotten the thread of the story, and to those who have never read the novel, the following synopsis of George Middleton's dramatization of the book, which comes to The Sixth Street Theatre October 26th, will prove of especial interest.

Dennis Fleet has been living with his mother on a farm near a small prairie town in Illinois. Though he is all she possesses she urges him to leave home and struggle for success in Chicago. On the day of his departure he heroically rescues from death a beautiful woman, with whom, in spite of her pride and disdain for his poverty, he becomes strangely fascinated. From Bill Cronk, a whimsical character—"who travels with the robins"—he learns she is Christine Ludolph, the only daughter of a wealthy art dealer in Chicago.

Dennis tenderly leaves his mother, who tells him there can be no barrier to a great love and also begs him to believe that no matter what happens never to lose his faith in the goodness of God. He arrives in Chicago nearly penniless and after a series of adventures finally becomes a porter in the Art Emporium of Christine's father, a hard task master full of contempt for American ideals and the religion which is the guiding principle to the life of Dennis. As on his brother's death, here Ludolph will become a Baron, he has brilliantly educated Christine for a marriage with a nobleman, though he has starved her soul, destroyed her faith in God, and almost ruined beyond repair her fine character.

But Dennis, who has become a valuable assistant to Ludolph, begins to exert a softening influence on Christine, tho she makes his position very difficult. Quite by accident, in an intense scene, she learns the great power of his religion, as he rescues from a wolf-fall, Berthold Bruder, a broken-hearted artist, whose genius Dennis has discovered. He prevents Bruder from selling for drink his one remaining picture—"The Symbol of His Better Life"—which Mr. Mollen, an unscrupulous speculator, is desirous of buying for Christine who wishes it. Hearing that Dennis has thwarted her in her desire she taunts him, before a large assemblage, into giving an opinion concerning another picture, which, unknown to him, she has herself painted. He condemns its lack of soul and says the artist has never felt love. Furious at him, she plans a most subtle revenge and weeks later leads him to believe she cares for him, and in so doing, against her own wishes, finds she too, has fallen in love. Her intention has been to force him to declare his love so that she can transfer to canvas the look she sees in his eyes, and thus show her power as an artist. But Susie Winthrop, her friend, has secretly fallen in love with Dennis and temporarily restrains Christine's plans. Mr. Mollen, however, stung with jealousy of Dennis, lies to Christine and forces her to believe Dennis is trying to make a fool of her. She resolves to finish the portrait in a passionate scene burns him to declare his love while she paints, then she hysterically shows him the completed portrait and in a furious outburst Dennis destroys the canvas and calls her and her pride to account. Upon this tumultuous scene comes her father, who has just learned of his brother's death and that he is a Baron, he scorns with indignation the pretensions and poverty of Dennis.

But the great fire has started and begins to sweep the city. In a flash Dennis sees that all of Ludolph's wealth is being destroyed. Ludolph, crazed, rushes out to his death. Christine, realizing her great injustice to Dennis and left alone in the burning building, calls aloud to God for help, while admitting her love for Dennis. She falls in a faint as the flames mount higher, but unbeknown to her, Dennis carries her to a place of safety and is himself taken back by the old artist to his mother's farm.

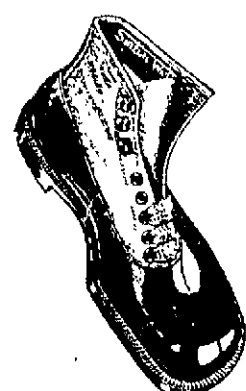

Here the weeks pass as he lingers between life and death, but to him finally comes Christine, a pauper with her soul awakened, her heart begging for forgiveness and a deep belief in the strength of her revived faith in God. In a beautiful scene, pathos, Dennis hears her plea and seeing she is the woman of his dreams, he takes her into his arms with all the barriers burned away.

SAY TEACHERS SHOULD BECOME SOCIAL LEADERS

Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—"Make yourself part of the social life of your town. The teacher should become a leader in educational matters in the community, social as well as scholastic."

The above admonition to teachers is contained in the fall bulletin to public schools and school teachers through the state issued by the state school commissioner.

Some of the hints given the teachers how to manage this are through the formation of parents' meetings were teachers and patrons will get acquainted, through agricultural clubs, where the pupils will have an opportunity to discuss the different phases of agriculture work and give their views upon it, by securing traveling libraries from the state department and in numerous other ways.

"Encourage your county fair boards to offer prizes on agriculture products cultivated by your pupils," the bulletin reads, they cannot do too much in this line, and give your encouragement to all organizations that are promoting agriculture.

Special stress is now being laid upon agricultural studies as taught in the state schools according to commissioner. General farm work and a practical knowledge of farm life is being instilled into the brains of the scholars.

Big Values In Little Shoes---

In most shoe shops the little ones are overlooked in the haste to satisfy the "grown ups." Here it is different. We make a special effort to match the little fellows' ideas. He has his likes and dislikes as well as the older folks only he just can't express them—but when he sees the right thing he knows it.

In looking after their wants so thoroughly we are looking after our own as well. The little boy or girl soon grows up. His or her trade grows more valuable every year. Later comes marriage and a family of their own and then we start on the next round. That's what we are looking for—continued patronage—and that's what we are getting.

Our business is growing steadily—there must be a reason for it, and there is. Our shoes are the best that money can buy and they are sold at a fair profit, doing justice to you and to ourselves.

If you have a Boy or Girl who needs shoes, bring them here, get them a pair of CANTWELL'S Shoes and just watch how they wear.

Want to Increase Rates.

Washington, Oct. 21. — It was an interesting array of legal talent that filled the rooms of the new commerce court at the commencement of arguments in the intermountain rate cases. These cases, which grew out of the order made by the interstate commerce commission, constraining the "long and short haul" clause of the last railway act, are the most important that have yet come before the court. Nearly all of the transcontinental railroads are represented in the cases as petitioners seeking a temporary injunction to restrain the orders made by the interstate commerce commission for the enforcement of the "long and short haul" clause. The government is represented by James A. Fowler, assistant to the attorney general, and the interstate commerce commission is represented by P. J. Farrell.

Gigantic Statue of Lincoln to Be Presented to Native State

KENTUCKY, the state that cradled Abraham Lincoln, is soon to have a statue of the great emancipator unveiled in the rotunda of the capitol at Frankfort. The statue, designed by Adolph Alexander Weinman, has recently been cast in New York. The statue is the gift of John Breckinridge Speed, whose father was a personal friend and ardent supporter of Lincoln and was made attorney general by Lincoln in 1864. The statue is more than nine feet high. It shows Lincoln as he appeared in the later years of his life, a tall, commanding figure, with his face eloquent of the stress of the stormy period through which he had piloted the nation.

"Liquid Money."

In France the money that must go for living expenses in a family is termed "liquid money," and the phrase is used to contrast such part of the income with funds that are set aside for "a rainy day."

BROWN NOW PROGRESSIVE

Chairman of Republican State Committee Issues a Statement.

Toledo, O., Oct. 21.—Walter F. Brown, chairman of the Republican state central committee and candidate for member of the coming constitutional convention, issued a clear and concise statement embodying his progressive views upon important particulars in which the present constitution of Ohio should be modified. Mr. Brown is now serving his third term as chairman of the Republican committee, of which he has been a member for 12 years, and he now seeks, for the first time in his career, a public office.

Mr. Brown stands for progressive ideas. He is for fewer public offices and a shorter ballot; the education of the voters to a higher degree of efficiency in determining public questions; the making of voting a duty instead of a privilege and the fixing of a poll tax to be imposed upon those who do not go to the polls. He suggests that either branch of the legislature or the governor be given the power to call upon the supreme court for opinion as to validity of laws in the making, so that defective measures may be cured and unconstitutional laws avoided. He stands for the initiative and referendum, for a smaller general assembly, and home rule for cities. As to the recall, he believes Ohio should wait until the experiments now being made in western states, will be a success or a failure.

LIABILITY ACT WILL BE TESTED

State Officials Yield to Demands of Ohio Manufacturers' Association. Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—Yielding to the insistent demand of the Ohio Manufacturers' association and others, Governor Harmon, after a conference with Attorney General Hogan, decided that the workmen's compensation act, passed at the last session of the legislature, should be tested in the supreme court as to its constitutionality.

Either Treasurer Creamer will refuse to honor a voucher, or Auditor Pullington will refuse to issue a warrant to the state liability board of awards, which was created under this act. The board will then ask Hogan, as its legal adviser, to enforce the payment of the voucher.

3-CENT FARE FOR DETROIT

Twenty Years of Streetcar Warfare Ended in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 21.—Twenty years of streetcar warfare in Detroit ended in Mayor Thompson's announcement that the Detroit United Railway company, owner of all the city lines, had agreed to the "Pinegrove universal 3-cent fares," universal transfers and had agreed to sell out to the city at any time after six months' notice.

The agreement will be submitted to a vote of the people. It is conceded it will carry overwhelmingly. In the agreement all obstacles for municipal ownership of the system are removed. Rates and service meanwhile are so satisfactory that it is not believed the city will exercise its option for many years to come.

SCORES POOR HOUSEKEEPING

Mrs. Rodgers Says There Are Multitudes of Badly Fed People.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Henry Wade Rodgers, wife of the dean of the Yale law school, in an address before the State Federation of Women's clubs, said that it might be imperative for the state to step in and demand that women be qualified to keep house before they could be granted marriage licenses. She added:

"We certainly recognize the need of something radical being done when we know the multitude of underfed, overfed and badly fed people, the wreckage of home life from bad home management, the lack of knowledge of money values as related to food, shelter, clothing and other household demands. Good housekeeping is closely bound up with good citizenship. A sanitary home, pure food, a pure milk and water supply, freedom from preventable diseases and innumerable moral and physical conditions of a sound and safe home, are almost as dependent upon the national, the state and the city government as upon the home manager."
